Objective of Programme:

- To discuss Intellectual Property Rights concept
- To know the importance of IPR, from management perspective

Description of Programme:

Intellectual property (IP) is a category of property that includes intangible creations of the human intellect. There are many types of intellectual property, and some countries recognize more than others. The most well-known types are copyrights, patents, trademarks, and trade secrets. It was not until the 19th century that the term "intellectual property" began to be used, and not until the late 20th century that it became commonplace in the majority of the world.

The main purpose of intellectual property law is to encourage the creation of a wide variety of intellectual goods. To achieve this, the law gives people and businesses property rights to the information and intellectual goods they create, usually for a limited period of time. This gives economic incentive for their creation, because it allows people to profit from the information and intellectual goods they create. These economic incentives are expected to stimulate innovation and contribute to the technological progress of countries, which depends on the extent of protection granted to innovators.

- 4) We got Prof. Vinod Bhelose from Navsahyadri Group of Institutions, Prof. S.B. Khalate and Prof. D.A. More both from Mahatma Phule Institute of Management as our guest speakers on for this seminar. Director Sir did felicitation of both the guests.
- 5) Prof. Vinod Bhelose Sir highlighted following information:
“The intangible nature of intellectual property presents difficulties when compared with traditional property like land or goods. Unlike traditional property, intellectual property is "indivisible" an unlimited number of people can "consume" an intellectual good without it being depleted.
- 6) Prof. S.B. Khalate told “Additionally, investments in intellectual goods suffer from problems of appropriation a landowner can surround their land with a robust fence and hire armed guards to protect it, but a producer of information or an intellectual good can usually do very little to stop their first buyer from replicating it and selling it at a lower price. Balancing rights so that they are strong enough to encourage the creation of intellectual goods but not so strong that they prevent the goods' wide use is the primary focus of modern intellectual property law.”
- 7) Prof. D.A. More Sir highlighted following information:
“Intellectual property rights include patents, copyright, industrial design rights, trademarks, plant variety rights, trade dress, geographical indications, and in some jurisdictions trade secrets. There are also more specialized or derived varieties of sui generis exclusive rights, such as circuit design rights (called mask work rights in the US) and supplementary protection certificates for pharmaceutical products (after expiry of a patent protecting them) and database rights (in European law). The term "industrial property" is sometimes used to refer to a large subset of intellectual property rights including patents, trademarks, industrial designs, utility models, service marks, trade names, and geographical indications.”

Prof. Rohan Dahivale, proposed vote of thanks.
